Panthers on the Prowl …

On January 1, 2009, Judy Lear, became National Chair of the Gray Panthers. She has already participated in several teleconferences and met with Gray Panthers of South Dade Network in Miami in January. In March she will chair the National Board meeting in Las Vegas. Judy continues to be active as Convenor of the New York Network, one of the Gray Panther U.N. delegation of nine, and speaking out against budget cuts to senior programs and transportation, and against the Mayor’s and City Council’s decision to overthrow term limits rather than submit the issue to voter referendum.

The New York network has become an organizational member of New York StateWide Senior Action Council…. Miguel Ibanez has joined the U.N. Gray Panther delegation representing us on issues confronting indigenous peoples.

Fair Share Tax Reform for New York State

Following the drastic economic events of 2008, the Gray Panthers support the Fair Share Tax Reform proposal to add $5 billion a year to the New York State budget. At present, all state personal income is taxed at 6.85%. Under Fair Share, the rate would rise to 8.25% for annual income over $250,000, and 10.30% for income over $1 million. This would restore the progressive state taxation of past years that existed before the Pataki-era tax cuts for the rich.

In January, Jesse Smith Campoamor and Claudia Chika of the Health Care Education Project briefed us on Fair Share and the coalition of union, health, and social justice groups and clergy endorsing it. “While taxes for wealthy New Yorkers have decreased, their incomes have skyrocketed. We can use the money to make the critical investments we need in healthcare, mass transit and public schools.

Gray Panthers 2008 National Convention

Joan Davis, Judy Lear, and Roger Sanjek represented the New York Gray Panthers at the national convention in Detroit, September 25-28, 2008. About seventy attended, including many from the two local Michigan networks, but also from Washington D.C., Miami, the Minnesota Twin Cities, and California groups in San Francisco, Berkeley, Contra Costa County, Sacramento, Santa Barbara, and South Bay.

Speakers included Detroit mayor Ken Cockrel; representatives of Physicians for a National Health Plan, the Sierra Club, the NAACP, and the ACLU; United Automobile Workers President Ron Gettelfinger; Gray Panther executive director Susan Murany; and Dr. Robert Butler, recovering from an injury, who summarized key ideas in his 2008 book, The Longevity Revolution: The Benefits and Challengers of Living a Long Life, via speaker telephone and PowerPoint. Several Detroit activists also spoke, and we all rallied outdoors to support “Turning America Around” by expanding unionization, preventing housing foreclosures, protecting the environment, and achieving universal health care.

Panthers from ten local groups, each nominated by their network, were presented Maggie Kuhn Leadership Awards. Roger Sanjek received one, and was introduced by Judy Lear. In all, there are now twenty-three Gray Panther local networks, plus organizing efforts or local liaisons in another nine cities and counties.

The convention delegates approved several new and revised resolutions, and selected four priority areas until the next national convention in 2012. They are:

A New President and Foreign Policy: The First Three Months

At our January meeting Anne Emerman shared the 2-page report of a group of Pennsylvania concerned citizens who responded to President Barack Obama’s invitation to have a house meeting to talk about foreign policy issues. Their ideas stirred favorable response. Here are their proposals for the first three months:

• Work towards ending the Gaza blockade by Egypt and Israel.
• Restore full diplomatic relationship with Venezuela.
• Restore full diplomatic relationship with Cuba and Syria, in return asking for a good will gesture that both countries announce the release of all political prisoners and adopt higher standards of human rights.
• Initiate dialogue with Iran to restore diplomatic relations.
• Foreign secretary level meeting with North Korea and Myanmar (Burma).

Their conclusion: “We suggest that making these small steps through diplomacy and dialogue, not unilateral military actions, will begin to earn us the respect of the world again.”
